

In practice, socialism didn't work.

But socialism could never have worked because it is based on false premises about human psychology and society, and gross ignorance of human economy.

—David Horowitz—