

IN CONGRESS, July 4, 1776.

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

Unalienable, God-given rights are not services performed for you or assets given to you by the government or any other entity or individual. They are your inherent freedoms to act on your own, for your own benefit or for the benefit of others. Appropriately, the document that explicitly speaks of God-given rights is the Declaration of Independence, not the Declaration of Dependence.