

Inherent in the phrase private property is the idea of an individual's God-given rights to own and manage material goods and other assets.

This is thoroughly consistent with the biblical idea of stewardship — one's duty to God to act responsibly with all those things with which he or she has been entrusted.